Site Category: Building

SiteComments:

A small cottage with a saddle roof of corrugated iron and a front verandah between endwalls also under iron. The one end has a diamond window and the house has a free-standing chimney on the right side. There is a lean-to extension at the back. The verandah roof has pipe supports with ornamental cast-iron brackets. The windows are 2X2 sashes and the central door has four panels and a single fanlight. This building and the adjoining one (185) are apparently the oldest buildings in this part of Voortrekker Road and should be protected under the Town Planning Scheme and investigated for possible declaration.

AdminComments:

It looks like the shape/ structure of the building has changed. Further, its use has also changed.
