If you are aware of fraud especially related to the distribution of monies to help workers through the worst effects of lockdown, now is your chance to blow the whistle and help bring fraudsters to book.

This is the invitation by Marsha Bronkhorst, Acting Commissioner of the Unemployment Insurance Fund (UIF) when launching fraud hotline platforms for clients and citizens to report all suspicious criminal activity related to the Covid-19 Temporary Employer-Employee Relief Scheme (Covid-19 TERS) and any other UIF fraud related matters.

The platforms are up and running already and you can report as early as 13, October 2020, even anonymously if you like in line with the Protected Disclosure Act.

"Since the inception of the Covid-19 TERS Relief Scheme, the Fund has been beset with a plethora of fraud allegations and complaints from clients and companies. I am, therefore, urging anyone with information regarding any Covid-19

UIF launches fraud hotline for Covid-19

TERS fraud or any other UIF fraud related matter to report this to us without any delay," said Bronkhorst.

Whistle-blowers are encouraged to provide as much details as possible, such as the UIF reference number of the company, address, ID numbers concerned and contact details when reporting.

She added that each case would be treated on its own merits and the turnaround time to finalise the allegation would vary depending on the complexity of the matter.

The reporting platforms are available 24 hours per day, 365 days a year and in all eleven (11) official languages.

Clients can use the below platforms to report Covid-19 TERS related fraud: Toll Free Number - 0800 212 799, SMS Call-Back - 30916, Email Address - uif@thehotline.co.za, Fax 2 Email - 0867 26 168, Telephone Web App - www.thehotlineapp.co.za, Website: www.thehotline.co.za

During the national Police Prayer Day service, Colonel Mojalefa Nkunika (below) from JTG cluster office addressed the different stakeholders and members of the community at the Assembly of God church in

The JTG District's Police Prayer Day service was held at the Assembly of God church in Siyathemba on 06 October 2020 to honour police officers for going the extra mile to curb the level of crime within our communities.

The religious event is an annual affair nationwide with the intention for SAPS members to seek God's intervention to receive heavenly protection. The event was organised by the Crime Prevention Forum in Siyathemba and different stakeholders such as Famsa, loveLife, Youth against Crime and the SAPS became part of the spiritually orientated occasion.

Community members and various religious faith-based groups and traditional leaders came in droves to mark the end of police safety month during the Prayer Day. The focus of the day was to pray for the safety of the entire police force and their families and commemorate the fallen heroes and heroines in blue who sacrificed their lives for the protection of all the people in the country.

Sargeant Mecwi urged members of the police potency to view prayer as an opportunity to request divine intervention from God to assist them in their quest of reducing the scourge of crime that continue to plague the communities.

"Vigorous transformation processes have taken place in the SAPS, including that of fighting crime through the guidance and protection of God which is of paramount importance, hence we hold prayers of this nature every year." Youth Against Crime chairperson Andrew Tshineva shared with Kathu Gazette.

The officiating pastor was Mr F Olfant from the Assembly of God church in Siyathemba, who opened the meeting with a prayer and welcomed everyone and the benediction was recited by the attendants at the end of the session.

The impact of Covid-19, gender-based violence, corruption, police safety and the smooth operation of all government arms were at the order of the day.

Global Handwashing Day

On 12 October 2020 is the Global Hand Washing Day (GHWD) campaign which is celebrated annually across the globe on 15 October, this year, 2020, geared to intensify the fight against the Covid-19 pandemic.

In the Northern Cape, the Department of Water and Sanitation has scheduled a number of visits to schools and clinics in various municipalities to raise awareness about the importance of washing hands with soap.

"Safely managed water and sanitation facilities, and the consistent practice of personal hygiene, are effective ways to prevent infectious disease outbreaks including the coronavirus," says acting Provincial Head of the Department of Water and Sanitation (DWS) in the Northern Cape, Kobus Streuders.

"The campaign (GHWD) and its core message of washing hands with soap, comes at an excellent time when we are fighting against the coronavirus. Washing hands with soap, used together with social distancing have emerged as a powerful tool to combat the Covid-19. That is why we have as the DWS, installed 884 water tanks, 13 hand wash facilities and distributed over 100 000 health and hygiene products throughout the Northern Cape to ensure that people can protect themselves against the coronavirus."

This year's theme, Clean Hands for All, follows the push to leave no one behind in the Sustainable Development Agenda. It follows the recent global initiative calling on all society to scale up hand hygiene, especially through handwashing with soap, it reminds us to be inclusive when addressing handwashing disparities, so as to enable all to protect themselves from the coronavirus, but also other diseases such as diarrhoea, cholera, and typhoid.

Although data shows the number of coronavirus infections in South Africa is gradually slowing down, the country is not out of the woods yet. The Department of Health has suggested that a second wave is possible if citizens become complacent.

This campaign (GHWD) should be used to reinforce messages to encourage all South Africans to practice good hand hygiene.
