RE: ROODEPLAAT WEF EIA CLARIFICATION

1. Ms Celeste Booth (Booth Heritage Consulting) conducted the Phase 1 Archaeological Impact Assessment (AIA) for the project and submitted the report to SRK Consulting on the findings in July 2015. The Final Scoping Report was used as the background information document as well as the layout maps provided by SRK Consulting, to aid the Phase 1 AIA. The same layout for the number and layout of turbines, the powerline alignment alternatives, internal roads, and laydown area were depicted in the FEIR. Therefore, there are no significant differences between the two project descriptions.
2. The proposed site was visited over a period of three days and all turbine areas, internal roads and laydown areas were accessible and accessed. The fieldwork conducted was adequate enough to identify the location and types of archaeological and associated heritage resources to make an informed statement on the significance of the heritage resources and appropriate mitigation measures.
3. Owing to extent of the powerline alternatives only the "preferred" powerline alternative was investigated, however, the recommendations in the report do address further studies to be conducted for the assessment of the power line alternatives as well any changes to the original layout, mainly for areas not covered in the Phase 1 AIA study. SRK Consulting has understood that in some cases further studies are required after environmental authorisation and prior to construction.
