Knysna is wet, wet, wet again

KNYSNA – After what has been one of the driest Novembers in decades, Knysna has finally received some welcome and much-needed rainfall over the past week-and-a-half.

The rainfall measured at the Diepwalle Forest Hut up to Sunday 19 December, provided by the Knysna Lakes section of SANParks' Garden Route National Park, indicate a 138,77% increase on the November rainfall figures. The rain brings welcome relief, after an incredibly dry November that yielded only 24,5mm of rain, according to the Diepwalle measurements.

November was so dry, in fact, that by the 14th, only 3,2mm of rain had been recorded. There was some welcome rain on the 21st that brought 11mm of rainfall, but the remaining nine days only yielded a further 10,3mm. According to a recent Knysna Municipality press release, the "approximate historical rainfall figure for the greater Knysna area during November is 85mm" – making November 2022 a long way off the mark.

But, with the festive season came much-needed rain in December. By 3 December Diepwalle had already recorded 14,5mm of rain, 59,18% of what was seen throughout the entire month of November. Two weeks later Knysna got the downpour it so desperately needed, yielding a staggering 44mm of rain according to the rain gauges at Diepwalle. This brings the total to 58,5mm in the first 19 days of December, and with just over a week left in the month this figure is bound to still increase.

Thankfully the welcome rain was not exclusive to Knysna. At Rondevlei, just outside Sedgefield, there has been an astronomical 1 063,16% increase in rainfall this month. Rondevlei only recorded 3,8mm of rain in November, according to SANParks, but this figure skyrocketed to 44,2mm by 19 December.

The extreme lack of rain throughout the greater Knysna municipal area led to the municipality implementing Level 3 water restrictions as of Friday 2 December, due to insufficient water reserves as a result of the dry November.

These restrictions remain in place, and are as follows:

- Municipal potable water is for human consumption only;
- No watering of gardens (not even with a bucket);
- No washing of vehicles and/or boats;
- All residents and businesses to restrict their usage to 20kl/month;
- Residents utilising more than the 20kl/month will be identified and notified to install water restrictive devices;

Standing up for our oceans

KNYSNA – On Wednesday 7 December, fishermen in Knysna joined a peaceful nationwide protest with The Green Connection against the destruction of the ocean and to demand an end to the exploration and extraction of any new climate change-escalating fossil fuel projects.

"The world is in a climate crisis, which means we should be making moves to (eventually, but steadily) cancel all fossil fuels, not discover more fossil fuel reserves and increase production - this contradicts the energy transition currently underway," says The Green Connection's community outreach coordinator, Neville van Rooy. "We believe that all applications for new projects should be stopped and that companies like TotalEnergies should instead invest their huge profits to transition away from fossil fuels."

Julie Danhausen, a small-scale fisher from Knysna, says, "The picket on 7 December was to tell Total we are not interested in oil and gas exploration that will destroy our ocean and contribute to climate change, in South Africa. No to oil and gas! Forward fishers, forward!"

Fighting French exploitation

The picket formed part of civil society mobilising for a just energy transition. Through its campaign, #OceanTotalDestruction, the Green Connection has called out the French company NGO Bloom, which continues to reap significant profits (up 131% from offshore oil and gas exploration and production at the expense of the climate, healthy oceans and the dignity and livelihoods of those who depend on the oceans. "With France supposedly being such a key player in global climate action efforts, it seems hypocritical that one of its largest companies is allowed to pursue extractive fossil fuel projects here in the global south," said Van Rooy.
