

Wisconsin Plan at Swartkrans

Purpose: Educate public on the work University of Wisconsin has been doing at the Swartkrans site. Mostly focused on the Field School that Wisconsin professor Travis Pickering leads with Wisconsin students on the site.

Use: Video, still photography, written reporting and social media to go out through the various University of Wisconsin marketing channels (homepage, Facebook, Twitter, etc.). All material will be approved by Travis Pickering/Wits personnel before anything is released to the public.

Featured People: Mostly Wisconsin professor Travis Pickering, and possible Wits professor Ron Clarke, depending on schedules. Travis Pickering would be supervising us at all times, and we are assuming someone from Wits will also be with us.

Location: Around the Swartkrans dig site, and also some material recorded at Wits describing the research aspects in more detail.

Dates: Scheduling is ongoing, but it would be one day (really just a few hours total) at Swartkrans in this range July 13-16, or possibly July 20-23.
