Proposed export of four shell samples to DirectAMS in the USA for radiocarbon dating. The aim of the dating is to determine more precisely the age of the site in question. It is late a Holocene site, likely to be less than 4000 years old and is located in Port Nolloth, Northern Cape.

Dear Dr Orton,

Thank you for your application for the export of four shells for radiocarbon dating to DirectAMS in the USA. SAHRA has reviewed your application and decided to approve it.

We wish you every success with this project.

Should you have any further queries, please contact the designated official using the case number quoted above in the case header.

Yours faithfully
