Historiese en Argitektoniese Belang

Al die geboue van die Rynse Pastorie-kompleks, wat opgerig is op grond wat in 1785 toegeken is aan Marthinus Byleveld, dateer uit die begin van die 19de eeu. Die hoofgebou is die voormalige pastorie van die Rynse Kerk en dateer uit 1815. Een van die agtervleuels van die H-vormige pastorie is verbind met die ander twee geboue wat deel van die kompleks uitmaak. Een hiervan, die sogenaamde Leipoldthuis met sy groot afmetings, dateer uit ongeveer 1832, terwyl die derde gebou met sy lae wolfendgewel, teen 1860 in 'n dubbelverdieping omskep is. Aan die een kant word die Rynse Pastorie-kompleks deur 'n lang ringmuur ingesluit.

Historical and Architectural Interest

All the buildings of the Rhenish Parsonage Complex, built on land granted to Marthinus Byleveld in 1785, date from the beginning of the 19th century. The main building is the former parsonage of the Rhenish Church and dates from 1815. One of the back wings of this H-shaped parsonage is connected with the other two buildings forming part of the complex. Of these the so-called Leipoldt House with its large proportions dates from approximately 1832, while the third building with its low dormer gable was converted into a double-storey in about 1860. On one side, the Rhenish Parsonage Complex is enclosed by a long circular wall.
