

Historical and architectural interest

This richly ornamented Victorian house is one of the so-called ostrich palaces and was designed by the well-known architect Charles Bullock. It was erected during 1909/10 for J. H. J. le Roux of the farm Baakenskraal at a stage when the ostrich feather industry was at its peak. 10/2/739.

T. N. H. JANSON, Minister of National Education.