

APPENDIX 3: PHOTOGRAPHIC EVIDENCE OF THE STUDY AREA

Fig. 1: General view of the study area from the north east towards the south west. The town of White River is seen in the background.

Fig. 2: A general view of the study area from the new bridge on the R40. The bridge is located on the south western corner of the study area. One of the residences is seen in the background (see arrow). The old bridge across the White River is below the new bridge (see arrow).

Fig. 3: A general view of the study area towards the south. The White River is indicated by the black line and forms the southern border of the property.

Fig. 4: A general view of the study area towards the east. The bluegum trees form the eastern border of the property.

Fig. 5: One of the soil samples which was investigated for any archaeological evidence.

Fig. 6: A small graveyard was identified in the north eastern corner of the study area.

Fig. 7: The graveyard consists of 5 graves which are neglected. Note the modern residence in the background.

Fig. 8: The recent ruin on the property.

Fig. 9: The old tarred road was replaced by a new road (the R40) in the background (see arrow).

Fig. 10: The original bridge across the White River was damaged on purpose to prevent people from using it.
