

APPENDIX 4

PHOTOGRAPHIC EVIDENCE OF THE STUDY AREA

Fig. 1: General view of study area from south to north. Previous maize fields are still visible.

Fig. 2: General view of study area from west to east. Previous maize fields are still visible.

Fig. 3: General view of study area from east to west. Note the remains of old pine trees.

Fig. 4: Refuse is dumped along the residential area. The study area slopes towards the north east.

Fig. 5: The indistinct remains of a stone foundation which is not believed to have any significance.

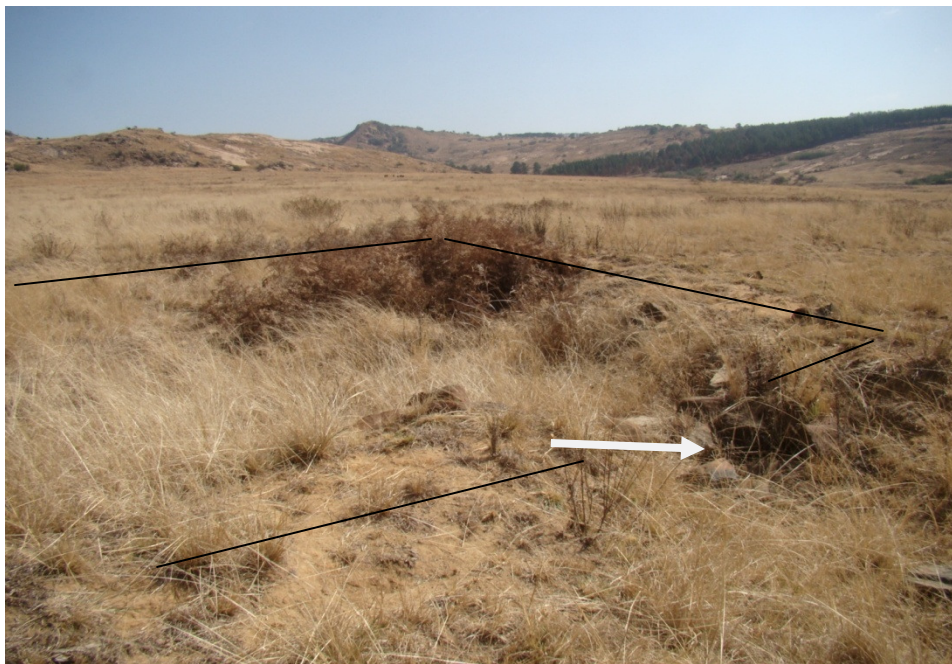

Fig. 6: Indistinct earth dam with water outlet (arrow). The dam is not within the study area.

Fig. 7: A section of the earth canal which leads to the dam (Fig. 6), is in the study area.

Fig. 8: The stone foundation of a cattle kraal. Most of the stones were carried away for building material by the local people. This feature is not within the study area.

Fig. 9: One of the upright stones which were used as a fence post. This feature is not within the study area.

Fig. 10: The remains of a clay brick house. This feature is not within the study area.

Fig. 11: Pits are dug on the property. The locals believe there is treasure buried at each feature.