

APPENDIX 1

PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE STUDY AREA: RIEKERTS LAAGER

Fig. 1: Approximately 80% of the study area has already been transformed by housing infrastructure.

Fig. 2: Although the township is not yet formalised, infrastructure such as tarred or concrete roads, electricity and water has already been established.

Fig. 3: Some sections in the study area still have dirt roads. This is the view towards the north. The central section is indicated by the arrow.

Fig. 4: View from the central section facing south. The central section is indicated by the arrow. The dirt roads were scraped by a road grader.

Fig. 5: View from the central / eastern section facing south. The established housing infrastructure is clearly visible. Grass and small shrubs cover most of this section.

Fig. 6: The soccer field in the central section will be kept as a public open space in the proposed development. It is currently surrounded by housing infrastructure on the west, south, east and a section on the north.

Fig. 7: The central section. Sections have been demarcated by locals with fences or corrugated iron structures for private use.

Fig. 8: View of the central section facing west. Cattle and human paths were used for access in this section.

Fig. 9: The central section is highly disturbed with vehicle tracks, cattle and human paths.

Fig. 10: Some areas in the central section are used for dumping of rubbish.
