Vision

To provide for the identification, conservation, protection and promotion of our heritage for the present and future generations.

Mission

As custodians of our national estate our mission is:

- To coordinate and monitor the identification of our national heritage;
- To set a norm and standards and maintain the management of heritage resources nationally;
- To encourage and facilitate the development of provincial structures;
- To control export and import of nationally significant heritage resources;
- To develop policy initiatives on the promotion and management of our heritage;
- To nurture an holistic celebration of our history;
- To set national policy for heritage resources management, i.e. formal protection, general protection and management;
- To develop an integrated and interactive system for the management of the national heritage resources.

INTRODUCTION

"Our heritage celebrates our achievements and contributes to redressing past inequities. It educates, it deepens our understanding of society and encourages us to empathize with the experience of others. It facilitates healing and material and symbolic restitution and it promotes new and previously neglected research into our rich oral traditions and customs."

This quotation from the National Heritage Resources Act (NHRA) encapsulates the spirit of the South African Heritage Resources Agency (SAHRA), which has replaced the National Monuments Council (NMC). One of the most important elements of the legislation is the opportunity it will provide for communities to participate in the identification, conservation and management of our cultural resources.

SAHRA is a statutory organisation established under the National Heritage Resources Act, No 26 of 1999, as the national administrative body responsible for the protection of South Africa's cultural heritage.

The Act follows the principle that heritage resources should be managed by the levels of government closest to the community. These local and provincial authorities will manage heritage resources as part of their planning process.

In order to develop the skills and capacities of communities, heritage resource agencies will promote education and training to encourage public involvement in the identification of heritage resources, with the recording of living heritage associated with heritage and oral history a crucial element, because much of the past is undocumented.

We present this information about SAHRA in order to create an awareness among the people of our country of their right to conserve what they consider to be valuable heritage resources, the mechanisms for doing this, and to recognise the exciting new possibilities that the Act creates for them.

The object of SAHRA is to coordinate the identification and management of the national estate. The aims are to introduce an integrated system for the identification, assessment and management of the heritage resources and to enable provincial and local authorities to adopt powers to protect and manage them.

A South African Heritage Resources Survey (SAHRS) will be established to coordinate a national strategy for the identification of heritage resources.

Issues relating to heritage resources and their value will be increasingly introduced into school curricula, with universities and technikons encouraged to increase heritage management programmes.

The national estate encompasses heritage resources of cultural significance for the present community and for future generations. It may include places to which oral traditions are attached or which are associated with living heritage; historical settlements; landscapes and natural features of cultural significance; archaeological and palaeontological sites; graves and burial grounds, including ancestral and royal graves and graves of traditional leaders; graves of victims of conflict; and sites relating to the history of slavery in South Africa.

The national estate includes movable objects such as those recovered from the soil or waters of South Africa; objects associated with living heritage; ethnographic and decorative art; objects of scientific interest; and books, documents, photographs, film material or sound recordings.

A place or object is considered part of the national estate if it has cultural significance because of its importance in the community, or pattern of South Africa's history, its possession of rare aspects of South Africa's natural or cultural heritage, its strong or special association with a particular cultural group for social, cultural or spiritual reasons.

TYPES OF PROTECTION

The well-known 'national monument' has disappeared and other formal categories of protection under the old National Monuments Council (NMC) have been modified. A new category of 'national heritage site' exists for sites of outstanding national importance.

In terms of general protections, the scope of the NHRA is wider with more safeguards against arbitrary decision-making. The linking of aspects of the national estate to the two main environmental impact assessment systems operating in the country makes the conservation system friendlier to development. This does not mean that developers may now disturb heritage resources, but that they are able to identify and deal with areas of risk more efficiently.

The system creates a situation whereby heritage resources authorities no longer operate in a vacuum, but from a position where it is informed by the feelings of a community regarding their heritage resources.

ProjectSummary:
The surveys by eCRAG are based in the Swartkops and eastern Cederberg between Wupperthal in the north and Op die Berg in the south. We have moved as far east as Die Mond and a few surveys to the west in the Sandveld. Our main focus is to finish the rock art surveys of the eastern Cederberg and to provide the landowners with conservation management plans.

SAHRIS

SAHRIS/NATIONAL INVENTORY TO DO LIST 2013-2014

SAHRIS

THE SAHRIS DIGITISATION PROJECT AND THE SCALE OF THE TASK AHEAD

- Phase 1 scanning project to end December or January 2014
- Estimate 3 – 5 years to complete the data extraction (phase 2)
- Current Dream Team contracted to June & September 2014, new Dream Team needs to be budgeted and trained
- Content Moderation of Phase 2 is INTENSIVE
- We need to SCALE up the model to digitise museums and other heritage authorities
- We should bring back the provincial files and digitise them – the PHRAs are hopelessly incapacitated and underfunded to carry this out on their own

KEY POINTS FROM THE SAHRIS SUPPORT PLAN

1. 3 Users have reached 'Super User' level
2. 1 User has reached Content Moderator level
3. 3 Users have reached SAHRIS Heritage Officer Level
4. Most of these users are currently from the APM Unit
5. Only 1 user is left at SAHRA with some understanding of the Collections Management side of SAHRIS
6. The operational management of SAHRIS now rests solely on the National Inventory Manager
7. Only two content moderators have been approved to start at SAHRA on a contractual basis – earliest start date is January 2014
8. There is no SAHRIS Helpdesk besides the support offered by the NI Manager
9. It will take a minimum of 6 months to train the content moderators to have the capabilities to serve on the SAHRIS helpdesk
10. There must be a dedicated SAHRIS helpdesk going forward – the level of service given by staff of the PHRAs and SAHRA is highly variable, sometimes bordering on unprofessional, and we have no control over the first experience of the users
11. SAHRA's IT Unit is already stretched and unlikely to play any meaningful role in SAHRIS Support
12. The Executive departure to Pretoria in February 2014 will significantly reduce the agility of decision-making required to support a live national system

KEY POINTS FROM THE SAHRIS SUPPORT PLAN

13. A certain level of flexibility and provision for revision of targets must be made to account for the disruptions that will arise from the move in August 2014
14. Lose Amafa, Lose SAHRIS – not a single other PHRA is functioning on SAHRIS
15. SAHRA's staff need to understand the MoA, SLA and licensing agreements on SAHRIS – eg we cannot afford another Annual Report without citations and a breach of the law
16. If SAHRA fails to support SAHRIS, the MoA makes provision for the PHRAs to take over the system until SAHRA sorts itself out
17. Failure to support the system effectively will lead to data withdrawal from our key partners such as UCT and the KZN Museum, at SAHRA's cost. This will potentially lead to the end of SAHRA's role as the custodian of the National Estate and a permanent segmentation of the information
18. Organisationally, SAHRA needs to change and integrate its functions – the unit structures are not creating an enabling environment
19. The proposed OD structure can be improved – be vocal about things that aren't working as there is a lot at stake
20. Look after the staff that are excelling on SAHRIS – the rest of the organisation is going to rely heavily on them.
21. Outsource the development, devolution support, support of museums and training of users outside of SAHRA to reduce the costs and risk – but SAHRA still needs to steer this process from the inside out.
